

Dear Parents and Carers,

We hope you had a fantastic half term break. In some ways, it's been a quiet week with most of the year 6 children away on residential and many families celebrating Eid. We'd like to take this opportunity to wish everyone 'Eid Mubarak'. It's probably not been so quiet for Mrs Finch and her husband who welcomed baby Harry on the 24th of May weighing 7lbs 10oz. Both mum and baby are doing well and I'm sure everyone in the Worple community would like to wish them many congratulations on the wonderful new addition to their family.

C8 Short Story Writing competition

Congratulations again to Georgia in who came 2nd out of all eight schools in the Y4 competition; her story is below.

The evil spirit – Georgia Mann Year 4

Ella was a polite, caring little girl unlike her father who was not. He was rude, selfish and mean. Ella's father was a stubby, hairy man who carried a long pointy spear on his back. They lived in an old house with a crooked roof, tall chimneys and bricked up windows.

Ella hated her life; she was fed up with being bossed around. She knew there was something in the house that made her father evil. If only she could find out what it was, maybe she could change things.

In the attic, there was a silver locked cabinet. Her father kept the key in his right hand pocket with his tissues. One day, while her father was downstairs stuffing his face with spaghetti, his favourite food, she grabbed the key out of his pocket and quietly sneaked upstairs. She tiptoed across the wooden floor and carefully unlocked the cabinet. Surprised, she saw a glowing white egg and suddenly she could sense that this was the evil spirit that controlled her father. Suddenly, she knew it had to be destroyed!

She grabbed the egg and ran and ran.

Meanwhile her father was at home looking for her, and the egg, in a raging temper.

"Where are you Ella Wood?" he yelled furiously.

She ran and ran with his voice echoing behind her.

As she was running, she tripped over a large, round pebble and bumped into a tall black lamppost, with a flickering white light. Ella let go of the egg and it rolled slowly across the bumpy ground. Heart beating, she scrambled to her feet clutching the egg in her hands.

In amazement, she saw the egg fading into her hands. Ella stared at the foggy night sky wondering if this was a dream, but she didn't realise that she had knocked all the power out of the egg.

From a distance, she could hear footsteps coming towards her and her father's voice calling her name. Exhausted, she turned around- she was tired of running away.

Unbelievably, she saw her father smiling with his arms wide open! She dashed towards him and there was a long silence. After that, they lived a normal life.

Year 6 Residential to Rookesbury Park by Anusha

This is the one and only trip
Which I had most fun in
We all did so much
Oh where do I begin?

The journey was so long
Forever it seemed to last
But that was just the boring bit
Which I should now get past.

Such a beautiful place we reached
 With rolling fields of fresh green grass
 In the middle we saw a majestic mansion
 As in our comfy coach we did pass.

We were greeted with a warm welcome
 By the instructors, who were so kind
 Despite the journey feeling dreadfully long
 We really didn't mind.

As for the activities, there's so much to say
 So much to tell you about
 Things in which we got wet and muddy
 And from our dorms we excitedly ran out!

We did a quiz on the house and grounds
 Together as good, hardworking crews
 We had to run in scorching heat
 To search for vital clues.

We merrily sang songs in the campfire
 As we nibbled our delicious smores
 We hated it when it was bedtime
 For we really wanted some more.

The abseiling and rock-climbing
 Were fun, but gave some quite a fright
 It was really exhilarating
 To travel to such a height.

We also crafted rockets from bottles
 And saw how fast it would fly
 Some of ours soared so high up
 It looked like they could touch the sky.

We had some splashy fun with rafts
 We all fell into the pool
 When we tested ours to float
 But luckily the water was nice and cool.

Sometimes to survive in the wild
 You need a temporary shelter
 So we built one in groups
 And kept on adjusting to make it better.

We also did some orienteering
 Using compasses and maps
 We followed directions to find some
 Cards hidden within nature's flaps.
 We all had a wonderful time
 Together with our friends
 Alas these fun days are over
 I hoped it would never end.
 But we've got so much to look forward to
 Towards the end of year
 Like several trips, our production and disco
 This gleeful time is so very near.
